

Bridging the Gap Between Investment and Insurance

Enabling advisors to integrate insurance and asset management to create more efficient, tax-aware client portfolios

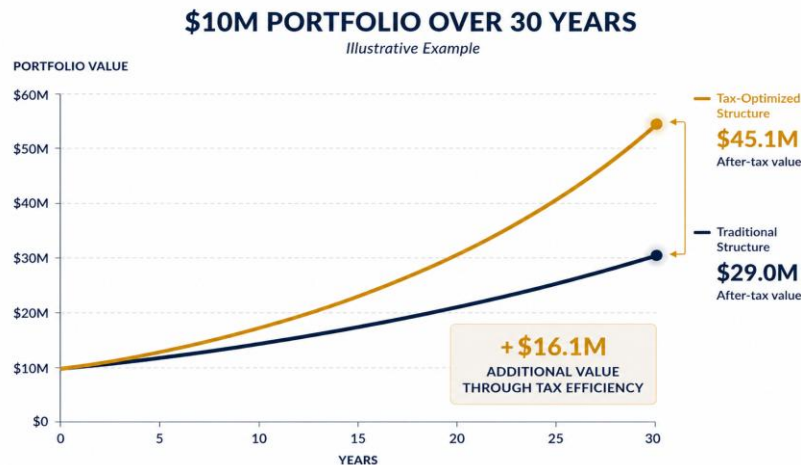

From siloed solutions to integrated portfolio strategy

The Hidden Cost of Tax Drag

Tax inefficiency can silently erode 200-400 bps annually from high-net-worth portfolios.

Over time, even modest tax drag translates into a meaningful reduction in long-term client outcomes.

The opportunity isn't incremental.
It's compounding!

Where Tax Drag Appears the Most

- ✓ High-turnover strategies
- ✓ Income-generating assets
- ✓ Alternative investments

Why It Matters

Insurance has long been used for protection and planning. But in modern portfolios, it can serve a much broader role as both:

- ✓ An asset allocation tool (what you invest in)
- ✓ An asset location strategy (where you hold it)

It creates the opportunity to:

- ✓ Improve after-tax outcomes
- ✓ Enhance portfolio efficiency
- ✓ Access institutional-quality investments
- ✓ Better align long-term client objectives

The Missing Links

Despite this potential, insurance remains largely disconnected from asset management.

- × Structured outside portfolio construction
- × Difficult to model alongside investments
- × Complex to implement and manage
- × Limited visibility and control

As a result, insurance is rarely thought of or used as a core component of portfolio strategy.

Advisors are increasingly focused on:

- Integrating alternatives and tax-aware strategies
